300G boost for impoverished kids

Murdoch aids school program

By SUSAN EDELMAN

New York Post owner Rupert Murdoch kicked off a partnership yesterday with One Hundred Black Men Inc. — giving the business group $300,000 for a convention and a program to mentor minority kids.

The money will boost the nonprofit group's "Adopt-a-School" program, in which successful business people serve as role models and tutors to struggling kids in poor neighborhoods.

"The whole thing is to give young people the opportunities to come out of what seem like hopeless circumstances," Murdoch, chairman of News Corp., said in announcing the alliance.

It's the first time the 35-year-old group — whose 500 members include Schools Chancellor Rudy Crew and Board of Education President Bill Thompson — has hooked up with a media company.

"He has the global reach we never had," said President Luther Gatling, who called Murdoch "my new long-lasting friend."

Murdoch was keynote speaker at a luncheon meeting attended by Hugh Price, president of the National Urban League.

Under the agreement signed yesterday:

- News Corp. will give $100,000 toward the group's National Economic Development Summit in 1999. The meeting will focus on "wealth creation" among minorities, which

Price called "the last frontier of the civil-rights movement."

- Another $200,000 — $50,000 a year for four years — will go for the mentoring program. One Hundred Black Men has "adopted" Roosevelt HS in The Bronx, recruiting members to help kids prepare for college and plan careers. The group will soon adopt the fledgling HS for Law, Government and Justice in The Bronx.

- News Corp., which owns The Post, Fox, HarperCollins and other media companies, will offer internships for black high-school seniors interested in communications.

- The corporation will collaborate with One Hundred Black Men to help minority business people buy or create media outlets.

"I believe that the lack of an equal education is the most egregious and the most insurmountable barrier for minority youth,"

Murdoch told the group.

Mentoring is "one essential step toward fixing our schools," he said. Another, he suggested, is vouchers.

"Parents and mentors must rise up and demand better public schools or the option to educate their children outside the public-school system," he said.
